RoadPeace

ARE YOU A VICTIM OF ROAD DEATH?

The primary victims are dead, but the surviving relatives and friends are victims too.

They face not only the devastating shock and grief, but often a multitude of practical and even legal problems.

Sometimes it is the first experience of unexpected death.

Sometimes it is the first experience of dealing with authorities such as the Police, Coroners, Magistrates, etc.

The problems can be overwhelming at a time when families feel least able to cope and often have little or no guidance.

RoadPeace HAVE A HELPLINE

Many RoadPeace members have known the tragedy of losing loved ones through road death. They have established a helpline to offer immediate practical information and sympathetic support to the bereaved.

The RoadPeace Helpline number is 081 964 1021

RoadPeace is a voluntary organisation committed to reducing the number of unnecessary deaths on our roads and supporting the bereaved survivors.
